

How to Get Help

If you have questions or need help regarding your workers' compensation benefits, the campus has a Workers' Compensation Specialist, Adell Seibles, in Human Resources (437-2623). She can provide immediate help with your questions or claim.

Medical services for non-emergency workplace injuries are provided by U.S. HealthWorks.

If you are dissatisfied with the information provided, you may contact the Information and Assistance Officer or an attorney. To reach the Information and Assistance Officer in Oxnard, call (805) 485-3528. The Information and Assistance Officer will inform you of your rights and, if necessary, will provide you with a full review of your claim for compensation. This information and assistance service is provided free of charge.

Some issues may need to be resolved by the Workers' Compensation Appeals Board. The Appeals Board is a court of law. You can represent yourself or you may want to hire a lawyer. If you hire a lawyer, the lawyer's fee will be deducted from any benefits you may be awarded.
