Carmen Tafolla

"With Our Very Own Names"

Noted author and keynote speaker Carmen Tafolla presents her own poetry in a theatrical medley of barrio voices, viejitos, pachucas, young leaders and children that deepen our understanding of education and cultural issues today. Dr. Tafolla, a native of San Antonio, Texas, has published three books of poetry, seven television screenplays, one non-fiction volume on racism, sexism and Chicana women, three children's books and numerous short stories and articles. Described by Alex Haley as a "world-class writer," she has been named nationally to the Outstanding Young Women of America, the Dictionary of International Biography, and Foremost Women of the Twentieth Century, and has conducted readings, speeches, and workshops on a variety of topics internationally.
